“Muslims in the Balkans between Nationalism and Transnationalism”

by Dr. Ina Merdjanova, Adjunct Assistant Professor, Trinity College Dublin

Ina Merdjanova received her Ph.D. from Sofia University “St. Kliment Ohridski” She is an adjunct assistant professor at Trinity College Dublin and in Spring 2017 is a visiting fellow in the Remarque Institute at NYU. She has held visiting fellowships at Oxford University and other institutions in Europe and in the U.S. At Sofia University, Merdjanova served as director of the Center for Interreligious Dialogue and Conflict Prevention. She received a three-year collaborative grant from the United States Institute of Peace and was awarded a two-year Senior Marie Curie Intra-European Career Development Fellowship, during which, she developed and taught 3 M.A. modules that addressed religion in Southeast Europe. Her most recent book is, Rediscovering the Umma: Muslims in the Balkans between Nationalism and Transnationalism (Oxford University Press, 2013).

melikian.asu.edu
melikiancenter@asu.edu
480-965-4188

March 30, 2017 7:00 PM Coor Hall, room 184